PEDAGOGY OF TRAINING

There is a paradigm shift in the content and scope of Indian Civil Services from 2013; with three comprehensive papers on General Studies and one on English Essay writing and comprehension. This entails an indepth understanding of the basic concepts as well as nuanced understanding of various academic disciplines like Economics, Constitution, Geography and Modern India, Science & Technology. Students need to be made adept at answering 25 questions in each paper with a word limit of around 200 words.

Besides, working knowledge in English needs to be supplanted with a far greater felicity as the English paper counts towards final merit list. Quantitatives require a quick silver mind. Fortunately, the School of Leadership is uniquely placed to meet such enormous academic challenge as it has the best of academics from Utkal University, Universities of Delhi to inculcate in the students the requisite depth, understanding and confidence. Most of the academics are closely connected with the UPSC either as examiners or interviewers. That's a big bonus.

The Director, Dr. S.N.Misra is a Civil Servant of repute and academic of distinction in Economics, Constitution and Global issues and takes enormous personal interest in empowering and motivating each student. Distinguished bureaucrats (serving & superannuated), inspirational speakers and opinion makers straddle the teaching space as Guest speakers. The school of is a beehive of serious academics and analysis. A major thrust has been to provide a level playing in knowledge to students joining from different backgrounds and disciplines. The idea is to enlighten and empower each one of them on a wide array of subjects eschewing superficiality. Once the student is committed and willing to put in the hard yards, the summit is eminently scalable.
